Less Software

Simpler systems, teams, and AI products.

Less Software is an independent practice for selective consulting, product experiments, and small software tools.

I bring two decades of experience building software and leading engineering teams. I work with teams to reduce unnecessary complexity, adopt AI deliberately, and build systems and products that create real leverage.

Current areas of focus include:

- Internal AI enablement
- Developer tooling and workflows
- Engineering effectiveness
- Lightweight, high-leverage software products

Working Together

I occasionally work with teams navigating technical complexity, AI adoption, and the messy middle between product ideas and operational reality.

Short engagements. Practical focus. High leverage.
